An action plan has been put in place to bring this figure back under target, including the usage of temporary staff.  |      |

| RBF02 - Average time taken to decide a change event for Housing Benefit | Chris BakerStuart Potton | 12.4 Days(71373/5763)Target: 13.0 |       | 8.4 Days(67207/8029)Target: 13.0 | \ | 15.5 Days(93375/6026)Target: 13.0 | √    | Performance dropped during this quarter due to the peak leave period in August, during which less work was completed, meaning that work done during September was older. A recovery plan has been put in place, which includes using temporary staff to clear the older work, while DBC staff continue to work on that more recently received. The effect has been an increase in the quarter figures but once completed we will return to under target performance.  In addition to the recovery plan, work is also underway to identify triggers for early intervention in the future, so that action can be taken before performance drops too much. |      |

| RBF04 - NNDR (Business Rates) in-year collection rate | Chris BakerJakeSeabourne | 59.9%Target: 59.5 |       | 28.4%Target: 24.8 |       | 53.0%Target: 49.5 |             | There has been a significant change to the collection profile this year, which means that comparison to the same time last year is not relevant.  During 2013/14, almost all accounts had 10 instalments from April to January, and so the collection profile was weighted towards these months. Following a change in the regulations, and to help businesses by evening out their cashflow, accounts were automatically switched to 12 instalments for 2014/15, and so the profile of the target collection rate is lower from April to January, but with a greater level of collection expected in February and March than in previous years. The expected collection at the halfway point in the year is just under 50%, the higher collection is probably due to a number of ratepayers who have chosen to switch back to 10 instalments.  The target collection profile will be reviewed for 2015/16 in light of the actual performance during this year. | ,    |

| RBF05 - Council Tax collection rate | Chris BakerJakeSeabourne | 58.1%Target: 57.7 | -     | 30.4%Target: 30.0 | \ | 58.1%Target: 57.7 | ✓           | Owner The collection rate is currently at the same level as at the end of Q2 last year. This indicates that the majority of tax payers are able to keep to their instalments, including those who receive Council Tax Support.  It remains too early to draw any conclusions about the impact of the changes to recovery legislation (there were significant changes to the regulation of bailiffs from April 2014), other than to say that there has been no immediately recognisable impact. |      |
